Cemetary and Crematorium

Hollinwood Oldham

Entrance

Accompanied by the music of Edith Piaf, Non, Je Ne Regrette Rien a favourite of both Jim and Nell

Opening Remarks

David Ireland will open the service with some words of welcome

Poem

Jim and Nells daughter Lesley will read a poem

The Long Road; J R R Tolkien.

Jim was a keen walker and this reflects a personal memory of Lesley's , it also remembers one of Jim's passions, how he led his life and his families memories.

Eulogy

David Ireand will reflect on Jim's life and to assist him, some words of remembrance will be given by Gary Fletcher his son in law, who will speak about Jim and reflect on a conversation that Jim had with Kirsi Urmson his daughter in law, when Jim spoke with her about his life.

Time for Reflection

Oldham has played a major part in Jim's life, living his entire childhood and working life in the town before realising a long held wish to move to Uppermill, He loved the music and words of the Oldham Tinkers and during this time for personal reflection we will listen together to "Owdham Edge" Children playing on the edge could see the vast terraced housing of the town stretching into the distance, the industry that sustained the tradesmen including Jim's trade as a painter and decorator and the beauty and ruggedness of the Pennines

Prayers of Thanksgiving and Commendation

The Lords Prayer

The Committal and Blessing

Exit

The music chosen as we exit with memories of Jim and his life, will be familiar to those family members closest to him. The song "In Barefoot Days" was something that Jim, his sister Annie, Ralph his brother and other members of the family would regularly sing at parties and family gatherings. While remembering those wonderful days, we will leave this rendition to those who did it best, The Oldham Tinkers. Smile as we remember those times and those who could not be with us today, including his son Michael and his wife Nell. They are also in our thoughts at this time.
