Poem - Rest now

Read by Lucy

We are here today to say our farewell on your final journey of being unwell It was a sad and difficult final part as you struggled with your poorly heart

Time was quick, they always say and at the end it was done your way At home with Elle, you laid to rest Safe and loved was your request

Memories new and memories old stay with us now for us to hold Words we process and stories remain as we try and deal with all this pain

We thank you Elle for being his wife looking after him in his later life We as sisters will journey on and continue to love whilst you are gone

Our grief and repair will now begin sharing stories with your sister Lynn We will continue to love, hug and care as a smooth and painless life is rare

*Rest now dad, time has come to sleep in peace and watch the sun To no longer hurt, and struggle each day
No more worry or fear in your way*

*We thank you all for being here to pay respects or shed a tear Let him rest, let him lie
We love you dad, sleep tight, goodbye.*

Final words from Bob

To everybody present I leave lots of love to you all and value the friendship and love you gave me. I will see you again on the other side unless as promised 'I will be back'. But will you know its me.

Elle, my adorable wife, I hope I have made you very happy and that you have enjoyed the many years sharing our lives as I did. I will never be far from you, and in spirit by your side, My love is forever yours. Stay strong you are a tough girl, live long and be happy.

To my three daughters please help your stepmum wherever you can especially during the initial period of my passing,

Elle will need your love and support which I know you will give her.

*Love you guys
Bobby / Rob / Bob*
