WELCOME & OPENING WORDS

A FEW TREASURED MEMORIES OF DAWN

POEM FOR MUM - Lynne Kennard

She wouldn't have wanted me to cry
Today when we say our last goodbye
She wouldn't have wanted us to mourn
For the Mum we had lost, oh no not Dawn

She said I always made her smile
To forget her problems for a while
And now at last she's out of pain
No more confusion in her brain

So how can I say I miss her so
When we lost her really years ago
I couldn't wish her back to see
Her suffering here, just for me

She told me:
When I die please don't dedicate a bench to me
Engraved with my name, looking out to sea
Don't sob on your doughnuts
Don't cry in your tea
Be happy that I am finally free.

REFLECTION & COMMITIAL

WORDS FROM GAIL

Your tired legs at last can run
Your work in this life is now done
The confusion and worries have now become clear
As you remember those you hold dear

Now that you are reunited with Dad
Chatting about the good times that were had
You with a glas of rosé, Dad with a beer
Both of you smiling from ear to ear

We mustn't be sad that you have departed
One life ends as another is started
Free again without troubles and pain
So goodbye dear Mum, until we meet again
