The Dash Poem

By Linda Ellis

I read of a man who stood to speak
At the funeral of a friend
He referred to the dates on the tombstone
From the beginning...to the end

He noted that first came the date of birth
And spoke the following date with tears
But he said what mattered most of all
Was the dash between those years

For the dash represents all the time
That they spent alive on earth
And now only those who loved them
Know what that little line is worth

For it matters not, how much we own,
The cars...the house...the cash
What matters is how we live and love
And how we spend our dash

So think about this long and hard.
Are there things you'd like to change?
For you never know how much time is left
That can still be rearranged.

If we could just slow down enough
To consider what's true and real
And always understand
The way other people feel

And be less quick to anger
And to show appreciation more
And love the people in our lives
Like we've never loved before

If we treat each other with respect
And more often wear a smile
Remembering this special dash
Might only last a little while

So when your eulogy is being read
With your life's actions to rehash...
Would you be proud of the things they say
About how you spent your dash?
