"I cannot stress enough the perils of your friends marrying...

One day you are all a society of outlaws, adventurous comrades and companions who will be pushing off somewhere or other when things become too tiresome... you have all the world to choose from, just by looking at the map.

And suddenly, they are not interested anymore. They want to keep warm.

They are afraid of rain. They start collecting things that do not fit in a rucksack... Formerly they hoisted sail, now they carpenter little shelves for porcelain mugs."
