POEM

extract from "Agnes Grey" by Anne Bronte

“Oh, they have robbed me of the hope
My spirit held so dear;
They will not let me hear that voice
My soul delights to hear.

They will not let me see that face
I so delight to see;
And they have taken all thy smiles,
And all thy love from me.

Well, let them seize on all they can;-
One treasure still is mine,-
A heart that loves to think on thee,
And feels the worth of thine.”#
