

A winter landscape featuring a sunset over a frozen field. The sky is filled with soft, golden light from the setting sun, breaking through a layer of grey clouds. In the foreground, a body of water is visible, with a large, bare, bushy tree on the left. The middle ground shows a wide, flat, frozen area, possibly a field or a frozen lake, with some tracks or paths visible. The background consists of a line of bare trees under the twilight sky. The entire scene is framed by a thin white border.
