A Tapestry of Life

*In Dublin's embrace, where emerald fields unfold,
A lady of 73, her life story told.
Born in Ireland's heart, where stories are spun,
In the tapestry of time, her journey begun.*

*A life well-lived, like the river's gentle flow,
Through valleys of laughter and peaks of woe.
In the embers of Dublin, her spirit refined,
A proud Irish lass, with a heart so kind.*

*Seven decades and three, a testament strong,
To the melodies of life, to which she belonged.
In Dublin's whispers and the shamrock's sway,
Her roots ran deep, in a proud Irish way.*

*In Dublin's memory, she'll forever reside,
A beacon of love, in the Irish tide.
May the angels sing, as they welcome her home,
In the green hills of Ireland, where spirits roam.*
