POEM - Belgian Buns

by Nicola, Nathan, Connor & Grant

We'll find Grandma in the garden but more likely you down the cake aisle Belgian buns and cream filled scones, the will I or won't I would always take a while

*We turn up with a treat to make it easier but then it's the same old thing
I've just had a sausage roll, you should've given me a ring*

*A few minutes of refusal, 'not for me' you'd say
But we all know 5 minutes later we'd come back to an empty tray*

You've missed trips out, you've missed your best friend You've really not known how your days you should spend

Moaning about the pigeons and Google checking facts Watching Dr Pimple Popper is how you would relax

*The last year has been a struggle, Belgian buns aside
We all know with Grandma is where you wanted to be, taking the car out for a ride*

*If Grandma's in the garden then you're not really gone
All that's left to do is put the kettle on*
