

MEG
&
JAMES

4 MAY 2024

BARNOUGLE CASTLE EDINBURGH

THAT PURE CHANCE COULD BE SO GENEROUS AND SO KIND.
THAT WE COULD FIND EACH OTHER IN THE VASTNESS OF SPACE AND THE IMMENSITY OF TIME.

CARL SAGAN

BUT DEAR,
DON'T BE AFRAID OF LOVE,
IT'S ONLY MAGIC.

RM DRAKE

WITH HUGE THANKS TO:

CELEBRANT

ANDREW MORRISON

PIPES

ANGUS SUTHERLAND

MUSIC

NEIL WATSON

JAMES ROGERS

READINGS

HARRY SMITH

TOM GOULDING

MARGI BATES

BRIDESMAIDS

CHARLOTTE SCHRODER

MILL ASH

IZZIE PLATTS-DUNN

IMMY WALKER

GROOMSMEN

FRASER HOGG

WILL MALES

JOHN STATHACOPOULOS

ANGUS SUTHERLAND

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased from 10.5 million to 13.5 million (19.5% of the population).

There are a number of reasons why the number of people aged 65 and over has increased. One of the main reasons is that people are living longer. The life expectancy at birth in the UK is now 77 years for men and 81 years for women. This is a significant increase from the 1950s, when life expectancy at birth was 71 years for men and 75 years for women.

Another reason why the number of people aged 65 and over has increased is that people are having children later in life. This means that there are more people aged 65 and over who have children who are still alive.

There are a number of other reasons why the number of people aged 65 and over has increased. These include the fact that people are getting married later in life, and the fact that people are having more children.

The increase in the number of people aged 65 and over has a number of implications for society. One of the main implications is that there is a need for more care and support for older people.

There are a number of ways in which society can provide care and support for older people. One way is through the provision of care homes. Another way is through the provision of home care services.

There are a number of other ways in which society can provide care and support for older people. These include the provision of day care services, and the provision of respite care services.

The increase in the number of people aged 65 and over has also led to a number of other changes in society. One of the main changes is that there is a need for more financial support for older people.

There are a number of ways in which society can provide financial support for older people. One way is through the provision of state pensions. Another way is through the provision of private pensions.

There are a number of other ways in which society can provide financial support for older people. These include the provision of social security benefits, and the provision of housing allowances.

The increase in the number of people aged 65 and over has also led to a number of other changes in society. One of the main changes is that there is a need for more social services.

There are a number of ways in which society can provide social services for older people. One way is through the provision of day care services. Another way is through the provision of respite care services.

There are a number of other ways in which society can provide social services for older people. These include the provision of home care services, and the provision of care homes.

The increase in the number of people aged 65 and over has also led to a number of other changes in society. One of the main changes is that there is a need for more health services.

There are a number of ways in which society can provide health services for older people. One way is through the provision of general practice services. Another way is through the provision of hospital services.

There are a number of other ways in which society can provide health services for older people. These include the provision of community health services, and the provision of home care services.

The increase in the number of people aged 65 and over has also led to a number of other changes in society. One of the main changes is that there is a need for more housing services.

There are a number of ways in which society can provide housing services for older people. One way is through the provision of council housing. Another way is through the provision of private housing.

There are a number of other ways in which society can provide housing services for older people. These include the provision of sheltered housing, and the provision of care homes.

The increase in the number of people aged 65 and over has also led to a number of other changes in society. One of the main changes is that there is a need for more transport services.

There are a number of ways in which society can provide transport services for older people. One way is through the provision of bus services. Another way is through the provision of taxi services.

There are a number of other ways in which society can provide transport services for older people. These include the provision of car clubs, and the provision of car sharing services.

The increase in the number of people aged 65 and over has also led to a number of other changes in society. One of the main changes is that there is a need for more leisure services.

There are a number of ways in which society can provide leisure services for older people. One way is through the provision of day care services. Another way is through the provision of respite care services.

There are a number of other ways in which society can provide leisure services for older people. These include the provision of home care services, and the provision of care homes.