Rose Garden

By Liz Newman

*But Loved ones remember
For all the roses that I grew
He tended and planted
Whole gardens in you*

*His heart warm and nurturing
His love strong and deep
Resilient and rooted
Yours to tend and to keep*

*His humour a harvest
His love gently blooms
His comforting presence
Still fills up a room*

*For now we are his roses
His legacy of light and care
The whole world will remember and know
That he was there*
