POEM OF FARWELL

By Sarah Jones

When I am gone, do not fear my memory.

Do not be afraid to speak my name or look through old photographs.

Do not be scared to play old videos so that you might hear my voice or hear me laughing.

Do not be wary of visiting my favourite places or eating my favourite foods or singing alone to my favourite songs. I know it will hurt. Those memories will remind you that I am gone, it will stab you like a knife with excruciating pain but after a while the wound will be less painful and raw.
Those memories will remind you that I was here. That I lived.

Do not reduce my life to death. Speak my name, hear my voice, sing my favourite songs and visit my favourite places.

Because that's how I stay alive a little. Right here with you.
